DESIGN OF AN EDUCATIONAL ACTIVITY FOR ROCK ART

TERMS OF REFERENCE

INTRODUCTION: Amafa /Heritage/Erfenis KwaZulu Natal is the provincial heritage agency appointed in terms of the KZN Heritage Act. It is responsible for, inter alia, promoting heritage and educating about heritage. Amafa has embarked on a multi-phased, rock art promotion and education programme, especially in the Buffer Zone of the Maloti-Drakensberg Park World Heritage Site. The current phase of this programme will include providing teaching assistance in the form of a hands-on toolset to primary school teachers and local museums. This project aims to educate children on the importance of heritage, especially rock art, conservation as they are the future stewards of the past by providing teachers with information and activities. Amafa now requires the services of a suitable qualified/experienced person/s to produce a concept design for a game based on the popular “Snakes and Ladders” game, along with an accompanying poster.

The successful consultant will also be required to produce rough prototypes of any applicable items and comprehensive user notes for teachers.

Target audiences: The activities/tools should be aimed at primary school students.

The game must be centered around the theme of Rock Art Conservation

Pricing. Interested service providers will provide costing for the project which will include details in respect of:

- i. Professional fees;
- ii. Transport (if applicable);
- iii. Subsistence (if applicable);
- iv. Subcontracts;
- v. Materials;
- vi. An indication of timeframe, delivery milestones and payment schedule.

The service provider will disclose any other funding received and/or used for this project, along with the particulars of all parties participating.

Time frame. This project is listed in the Annual Performance Plan for the Professional and Research Section of Amafa for the current financial year, and as such, the final reports should be lodged with Amafa by mid-March 2016 for perusal.

Amafa Staff Input Amafa staff has some suggestions and input related to this project and the successful service provider will be required to liaise closely with staff.

Deadline for quotes: 21 January 2015
